

MAN ABOUT TOWN

We don't mind being somebody's valontine, and we never object to receiving lac; and ribbon things, with cupids and hearts at over them, smelling like vio ets. We have often been somebody's valen-tine, a.d we have had somebody for our vident ne many's the time.

Hut, when somebody sends us a valen-Hut, when somebody sends us a value tide with a follow with a red nose, sitting at a desk in his shirt sloeves, with one suspender instead with a null, and a pin his mouth and a pair of selesors and a paste pot in front of him, and a hist surved cat at his seet, and a waste by Ret. ul of peems, at his see, with the following verse, it makes us sole:

"You think you can write,
But you cannot indite
A shigle gramma ideal line;
to just take a walk;
You can't even talk;
You're simply a bore and a shine."

If the fellow who sent us this pretty pitue and this brautful verse would only come from under cover and let he light he in the open over his own name, we might condescent to laive a per, or all interview with him, with pances in our favor of being let off by dustice John. With all this, we have some admirers—one at least—and she certainty must have one at least—and she certainty must have eyes could write such poorry as this:

"I think of thee, asleep, awake;
You are my pie, my buckwheat cake;
With you my life would be one bliss—
A chocolate drop, a sugar kiss—
I picture you in every dream—
My orangeade my chococitic cream—
I'd rather walk with you up tar
Thur ride up-town in trolley car.
So be my own, and only mine.
My sweetest, dearest varentine."

Of course, we will. And, if this fair young thing will only come from under her veil and give us her hame and address, we'll run the chances of an interview with her, without the prospects of a Justice John seance.

There are times when we yearn for owners on the half shell.

We love to sit up at a counter with a long the slab in front of us, flanked by a far of horse-radish and a buttle of imitstion Worster sauce, and a man on the other side, with an upron on, and an axe in his land.

We like to see him hit an oyster over the head with the axe, and then how sweet it to is watch him ince a butcher-kniff and scoop the succulent blyalve out of his happy, quiet home, and place him on the tin slab in front of us, with the grace of an elephant climbing a tree.

The oyster maintains a dignified silen e during the operation. He does not raise his voice in silent reproach, neither does he wink the other eye.

We would like to be an oyster, for thon we dhave a quiet family.

No getting up at 5 f. M. to split kirding; no pictures to hang; no fall ng stove-ppes to p t up; no trolley curs to freeze in; no summer plenics to carry big baskets to; ne vaudeville shows!

How happy it must feel to be an oyster—an oyster on the half-shell!

We can't understand why there should be se much trouble getting a man to run

We can't understand why there should e so much trouble getting a man to run so much trouble getting a man to am mayor.
The salary is fair and the duties small.

a mayor has to do is to sit in a in a comf riable office and read the r; then he may smoke a pipe and talh his beelers and formulate plans No. re-election.

We would sac life ourself to be mayor orce, but, if we are not looked upon as string, enough, we have in mind our good frend, "Glad Hand Charlle."

Le has nothing to do and plenty of time in which to do it.

Give him a chance.

Money Loaned a King.

Mrs. Alexander Acheson, a poor woman of Tacoma, who supports an inval'd husband, claims a fortune of half a million dollars from the Eank of England, hasing her claim on proof of direct descent from William Peterson, founder of the bank.

Prior to the establishment of the bank, in 194, Peterson loaned $150,00 to King William, who used it 'n earrying on one of lis wars. This money, with accrued interest for 200 years, Mrs. Acheson will attempt to recover. She lacks funds with which to go to London, with the object of eatablishing her claim.

It is said that several years ago Mrs. Acheson's uncle reached the garret in the Bank of England, inding papers which seemingly confirmed Mrs. Acheson's tights to a fortune.

The money loaned to King William was subsequently paid to the Bank of England, but was never taken out by Peterson.—New York Herald. Mrs. Alexander Acheson, a poor woman

They Swap Children.

Of the many forms of recent interna-tional courtieles the most interesting and original is that of the exchange of children. France and Germany have just children. France and Germany have just made such on exchange.

PERFECT CONFIDENCE IN CHAMBER-LAIN'S COUGH REMEDY.

Where there used to be a feeling of uneasiness and worry in the household when a child showed symptoms of croup, there is now perfect confidence. This is owing to the uniform success of Chamberlain's Cough Romedy in the treatment of that disease. Mrs. M. I. Basford, of Peolesville, Md., in speaking of her experience in the use of that remedy, says: "I have a world of confidence in Chamberlain's Cough Remedy for I have used it with perfect success. My child, Garland, is subject to severe attacks of croup and it always gives him prompt relief." For sale by all druggists.

BUSHEL OF ANSWERS TO THE PICTURE PUZZLE.

The cut-up Picture Puzzle published on the want ad. page of The Times-Dispatch Sunday has proven to be a most popular source of amusement and entertainment for a very large number of Richmond people. About a bushel of replies have already been received. How many of these are correct it is impossible to say, for none of them will be opened until 4 o'clock this afternoon, at which hour the contest closes. The three sets of theatre tickets have already been secured and laid aside, and will be mailed to the winners just as oon as the contest is decided.

It is to be regretted that one or two typographical errors occurred in the capital letters which were scattered through the vants. In one ad. was the letter "N," when it should have been M." and there was an "E" which should not have been there. The Times-Dispatch apologizes to the contestants for these errors and will take steps to prevent errors of this sort when the next puzzle is published, which will probably be next Sunday.
